

Wampanoag and Pilgrims:
Together They Were Better
Adapted from original by Joan Zatorski
Illustrator Felicity Frisbee

Long ago, two groups of very different people learned how important it was to work together and get along.

These people were the Wampanoag Indians and the Pilgrims. This is the story of how they helped each other.

The Wampanoag Indians lived in America by the Atlantic Ocean.

They were good farmers.

They were good fishermen and hunters.

The Pilgrims lived in England. They were not happy living there.

They did something very brave. In the fall of 1620, the Pilgrims sailed to a land they had not seen before.

The Pilgrims sailed to America on a ship called the Mayflower. It was a very long trip and dangerous trip.

It was fall. The Pilgrims landed in Cape Cod.

This place was where the Wampanoag lived.

The Wampanoag worried about meeting the Pilgrims. The Pilgrims worried about meeting
the Wampanoag.

They looked different.

They spoke different languages. They wore different clothes. They tried to hide from each other.

The Pilgrims had a hard time during the winter in their new land. They did not have enough houses, food, or warm clothes.

The Pilgrims had to sleep on the ship until some houses were built. Many Pilgrims became ill and some died.

In the Spring, one Indian helped the Pilgrims. His name was Squanto.

Squanto showed the Pilgrims how to plant corn.

Squanto showed the Pilgrims how to fish.

Squanto showed the Pilgrims how to hunt.

Soon other Wampanoags visited the Pilgrims.

They signed a paper that said they would not harm
each other.

The Wampanoag and Pilgrims learned not fear each other. They began to work together to have better lives.

The Wampanoag
showed the Pilgrims how to cook corn on a fire.

The Pilgrims gave the Wampanoag some seeds.

The Pilgrims and Wampanoag traded with each other.

The Wampanoag
helped the Pilgrims build houses.

After summer was over, the Pilgrims had more food. They wanted to celebrate and have a feast. They invited the Wampanoag.

The Wampanoag brought deer and turkey to share with the Pilgrims. The Pilgrims made bread, cheese, pies, and fish for everyone.

The Wampanoag and Pilgrims helped each other.
They were better, working together.