The Blind Men and the Elephant
A Hindoo Fable
By John Godfrey Saxe

I.
It was six men of Indostan
To learning much inclined,
Who went to see the Elephant
(Though all of them were blind),
That each by observation
Might satisfy his mind.

II.
The First approached the Elephant,
And happening to fall
Against his broad and sturdy side,
At once began to bawl:
"God bless me!—but the Elephant
Is very like a wall!"

III.
The Second, feeling of the tusk,
Cried:"Ho!—what have we here
So very round and smooth and sharp?
To me 't is mighty clear
This wonder of an Elephant
Is very like a spear!"

IV.
The Third approached the animal,
And happening to take
The squirming trunk within his hands,
Thus boldly up and spake:
"I see," quoth he, "the Elephant
Is very like a snake!"

V.
The Fourth reached out his eager hand,
And felt about the knee.
"What most this wondrous beast is like
Is mighty plain," quoth he;
"'T is clear enough the Elephant
Is very like a tree!"

VI.
The Fifth, who chanced to touch the ear,
Said: "E'en the blindest man
Can tell what this resembles most;
Deny the fact who can,
This marvel of an Elephant
Is very like a fan!"

VII.
The Sixth no sooner had begun
About the beast to grope,
Than, seizing on the swinging tail
That fell within his scope,
"I see," quoth he, "the Elephant
Is very like a rope!"

VIII.
And so these men of Indostan
Disputed loud and long,
Each in his own opinion
Exceeding stiff and strong,
Though each was partly in the right,
And all were in the wrong!

MORAL
So, oft in theologick wars
The disputants, I ween,
Rail on in utter ignorance
Of what each other mean,
And prate about an Elephant
Not one of them has seen!

Let me see if I heard you right…
To paraphrase what you just said, you…
In other words, you are saying that…
What I understood was…
It sounds like you think that…

SYNTHESIZE

Prompt starters:
How can we summarize what we discussed?
How can we bring these ideas together?
What is our conclusion?

Response starters:
We can say that…
It boils down to…
We can agree that…
Even though some might think that…, we conclude that…

Support on/Challenge Another’s Idea

Prompt starters:
How can we add to this idea of…
What other ideas or examples relate to this idea?
What else could support this idea?
Do you agree?
What contradicts this?
What are other points of view?

Response starters:
I would add that…
Building on your idea that…, I think…
That idea connects to…
I see it a different way. On the other hand…
Let’s stay focused on the idea of… Let’s get back to the idea of…

"A Walk in Their Shoes"
An Optional Point of View Project

Directions: Look at the pictures of shoes on the following pages and select one for this activity. After you have chosen a shoe, create a character who would wear those shoes. Create details and a past history for the character. Compose a one page profile in first or third person perspective of the shoe owner, telling the story of his/her life. Remember that you are imagining the owner as a living, breathing person, not just a mere list of facts. Your story should have a narrative flow. Be creative and have fun!!

Student Model

Ella Lynne Myers, an eighteen year old ballerina, had just finished one of the most exciting ballets of her life. For a poor girl from New Jersey, performing in New York City's Nutcracker Ballet was the highlight of her life so far.

Ella, a slender and graceful teenager, had spent her whole life attending ballet school since the age of seven. Waking up early every day was something she had to get used to but that she had finally come to accept. She was the oldest of two children, and lived with a single mother whose husband ran out on the family when Ella was two years old, leaving the girls without any financial support. But it wasn’t long before Ella found what she was destined to do for the rest of her life.

Despite the great odds against her and her family, Ella stumbled upon ballet one day after watching the graceful ballerinas glide along the studio across the street from her New Jersey apartment. Every day after the bus dropped her off at the corner street near the studio, Ella dreamed big dreams of becoming a star ballerina for the New York Ballet Company. She'd once seen how beautiful and graceful they were on TV, and they became her obsession. Every day, she’d bug her mother to let her enroll in ballet classes, even though she knew the family couldn't afford it. But it turned out that money wasn’t an obstacle; the girl's grandmother had set aside some money for her which she was able to use for enrolling in ballet classes.

Ella hardly knew what she was in for that first day. By the end of the first year, however, she showed amazing talent and caught the eye of her instructors. By the time Ella turned sixteen, she was accepted into Juilliard School on a scholarship where she was trained by the greatest ballerinas in the world. She was getting herself ready for the show of her life, which would launch her into a new world of opportunity. Though she’d struggled for ten years with blistered toes, bruises, torn muscles, and exhausting rehearsals, Ella Myers finally saw her name in gleaming lights outside New York's Broadway Theatre and became what she had always dreamed she could be.

"Are Young Athletes Putting Themselves at Risk?"
Injuries and burnout are on the rise among young people in competitive sports

YES

A lot of kids and adults think that youth sports in the U.S. have become too intense. In 2006, the Minnesota Youth Soccer Association polled young players about behavior they had observed at sports games. More than a third said that they had been yelled at or teased by a fan; 15 percent said their parents got angry when they played poorly. In a similar poll by Sports Illustrated for Kids in 2001, 74 percent of kids said that they had witnessed out-of-control adults at their games.

This sort of behavior takes an emotional toll. One recent study reported that 70 percent of young athletes drop out of their sports by age 13. Many of those kids told researchers that sports weren't much fun.

There are also physical risks. Half of all sports injuries among kids each year are caused by simple overuse, according to the American Academy of Pediatrics. Stress fractures, ruptured ligaments, and growth-plate* injuries can cause lifelong problems. They're all avoidable with rest and moderation.

I know more than I'd like to about such injuries. When my son was 18, he ruptured an elbow ligament while pitching for his high school baseball team. At the time, he was playing for three different baseball teams in three different seasons. I wish I'd realized then how excessive that was.

- Mark Hyman
Sports Journalist and Author

NO

Those who argue that youth sports are too intense point mostly to two factors—the amount of time that they require and the pressure they place on young athletes. These are the very qualities, however, that make sports so valuable.

Youth sports today indeed require a big investment of time, money, and energy. But the physical and emotional benefits that come from playing sports are worth it.

Young athletes who spend countless hours training learn the value of discipline and commitment. There is simply no way other than tireless repetition to master the skills necessary to succeed in competitive athletics. When an athlete performs well as a result of this kind of training, he or she develops genuine self-confidence.

With parents shouting from the sidelines and college scouts watching, high-level competitions are packed with pressure. But when managed well, this pressure can bring out the best in young athletes.

To successfully compete in this environment, young athletes must develop mechanisms for blocking out distractions and concentrating only on the details relevant to performance. Instead of being held back by the pressure, they learn to thrive under it.

In the soccer club I work for, I've seen countless kids achieve their potential as a result of all their hard work. It's the intensity that makes youth sports so valuable.

Should 4-Year-Olds Be Beauty Queens?
Millions of young children compete in pageants across America. Do these contests go too far?
By Justin O'Neill  Scholastic Scope  December 12, 2011

Four-year-old Karley stands in her family's kitchen, dressed in a bikini. She screams in terror as her mom approaches with a spray can. There is no escape for Karley. The dreaded moment has arrived.

The instant the cold mist hits her bare shoulders, Karley squirms, cries out, and stomps her feet. She shakes like she has been electrocuted.

"Look at your white legs!" Karley's mom scolds, while covering her daughter head to toe with fake tanner.

Welcome to the strange world of child beauty pageants.

In the Name of Beauty

Some 3 million kids -- most of them girls -- between the ages of 6 months and 16 years compete in American pageants each year. They face off locally and nationally in categories such as swimsuits, talent, evening wear, and themed costumes. This is a world where toddlers sport fake fingernails, a mother feeds her daughter 10 Pixy Stix as a pre-pageant energy boost, and parents routinely drop five grand on a child's pageant outfit.

You can see it all on TLC's controversial reality show Toddlers & Tiaras. Young contestants like Karley endure a lot in the name of "beauty": eyebrow waxes, wigs, heavy makeup, manicures, and partial dentures called "flippers" that fill in gaps left by missing front teeth. This can't possibly be good for kids, can it? Pageant fans say it's harmless fun. They say that pageants can even benefit children by building their confidence and public-speaking skills. Plus, pageant winners earn college scholarships, cash -- and those cherished sparkly tiaras, of course.

Others think that child beauty contests are downright ugly. For one thing, pageants are costly. Besides buying a closet full of pricey dresses, families spend fortunes on entry fees, travel, hotel rooms, makeup, and coaches.

Damaging Message?

Perhaps more seriously, some believe that beauty pageants send the damaging message that appearance is the most important thing about a person. Critics also worry that instead of celebrating individuality, pageants encourage girls to change their looks to fit narrow, invented standards of beauty. There is a concern as well over the way contestants imitate the fashions and behaviors of adult celebrities, strutting across the stage in short skirts and revealing dresses. Is it appropriate for children to dress and act in such a mature way?

Despite the opposition, pageant parents insist that competing in beauty contests is no different from playing a sport, which also requires time and money and puts intense pressure on young competitors. Like young athletes, little beauty queens learn discipline, feel great pride in their accomplishments, and form lasting friendships.

Yet where but on Toddlers & Tiaras can you watch a mother convince her 8-year-old daughter to have her eyelashes dyed? For some, this kind of thing is cute fun. It's enough to make others want to scream.

Just like Karley.

Argumentative Presentation

You will be presenting an argument to the class. You will select a topic and decide on the claim that you would like to make. You will research that topic and compile evidence that supports your claim. After your presentation is written, you will deliver it as a speech.

Possible Topics:

Should schools require students to wear a uniform?

Should schools be allowed to sell "junk" food (e.g., soda, fried chips)?

Should girls and boys be taught in same gender classrooms?

How could your school or community be improved? (Choose only one way.)

Should cell phones be banned from schools?

To make a good presentation:

- State your claim (including your topic!) clearly
- Have sufficient, relevant information that supports your claim.
- Close your speech powerfully. (Make sure the audience knows your opinion and perhaps what they should do about it - a “call to action”.)
- Do not read your speech.
- Make eye contact with the audience.
- Speak at a natural pace and a volume that can be heard by all students.
- Pronounce your words clearly.

Use the space below to brainstorm ideas. Refer to the rubric on the next page to guide your planning.
Rubric:

Reflection

Now that you have delivered your argumentative presentation, answer the following questions:

- Was your speech objective or subjective?
- What was your point of view?
- How did that affect your perception of the topic?

Revising for Point of View
"Yeh-Shen"

Directions: You will choose one of the short passages below and revise it so that it is being told from a different point of view. Since "Yeh-Shen" is told with an omniscient narrator, you may choose first-person or third-person limited for your version. Use the lined pages attached for your writing.

Passage 1: The Killing of Yeh-Shen’s Fish (page 252)

Somehow the stepmother heard of this. She was terribly angry to discover that Yeh-Shen had kept a secret from her. She hurried down to the pond, but she was unable to see the fish, for Yeh-Shen’s pet wisely hid itself. The stepmother, however, was a crafty woman, and she soon thought of a plan. She walked home and called out, “Yeh-Shen, go and collect some firewood. But wait! The neighbors might see you. Leave your filthy coat here!” The minute the girl was out of sight, her stepmother slipped on the coat herself and went down again to the pond. This time the big fish saw Yeh-Shen’s familiar jacket and heaved itself onto the bank, expecting to be fed. But the stepmother, having hidden a dagger in her sleeve, stabbed the fish, wrapped it in her garments, and took it home to cook for dinner.

When Yeh-Shen came to the pond that evening, she found her pet had disappeared. Overcome with grief, the girl collapsed on the ground and dropped her tears into the still waters of the pond.

Passage 2: The Feast (pages 253-254)

That day Yeh-Shen turned many a head as she appeared at the feast. All around her people whispered, “Look at that beautiful girl! Who can she be?”

But above this, Stepsister was heard to say, “Mother, does she not resemble our Yeh-Shen?”

Upon hearing this, Yeh-Shen jumped up and ran off before her stepsister could look closely at her. She raced down the mountainside, and in doing so, she lost one of her golden slippers. No sooner had the shoe fallen from her foot than all her fine clothes turned back to rags. Only one thing remained—a tiny golden shoe. Yeh-Shen hurried to the bones of her fish and returned the slipper, promising to find its mate. But now the bones were silent. Sadly Yeh-Shen realized that she had lost her only friend. She hid the little shoe in her bedstraw and went outside to cry. Leaning against a fruit tree, she sobbed and sobbed until she fell asleep.

The stepmother left the gathering to check on Yeh-Shen, but when she returned home, she found the girl sound asleep, with her arms wrapped around a fruit tree. So, thinking no more of her, the stepmother rejoined the party. Meantime, a villager had found the shoe. Recognizing its worth, he sold it to a merchant, who presented it in turn to the king of the island kingdom of T’o Han.
Passage 3: Yeh-Shen Retrieving Her Slipper (pages 254-255)

It wasn’t until the blackest part of night, while the moon hid behind a cloud, that Yeh-Shen dared to show her face at the pavilion, and even then she tiptoed timidly across the wide floor. Sinking down to her knees, the girl in rags examined the tiny shoe. Only when she was sure that this was the missing mate to her own golden slipper did she dare pick it up. At last she could return both little shoes to the fish bones. Surely then her beloved spirit would speak to her again.

Now the king’s first thought, on seeing Yeh-Shen take the precious slipper, was to throw the girl into prison as a thief. But when she turned to leave, he caught a glimpse of her face. At once the king was struck by the sweet harmony of her features, which seemed so out of keeping with the rags she wore. It was then that he took a closer look and noticed that she walked upon the tiniest feet he had ever seen.

With a wave of his hand, the king signaled that this tattered creature was to be allowed to depart with the golden slipper. Quietly, the king’s men slipped off and followed her home.

All this time, Yeh-Shen was unaware of the excitement she had caused. She had made her way home and was about to hide both sandals in her bedding when there was a pounding at the door. Yeh-Shen went to see who it was—and found a king at her doorstep. She was very frightened at first, but the king spoke to her in a kind voice and asked her to try the golden slippers on her feet. The maiden did as she was told, and as she stood in her golden shoes, her rags were transformed once more into the feathered cloak and beautiful azure gown.

Fairy Tale Times Two

Directions: Use the space below to brainstorm as many fairy tales that you can remember well.

You will choose a fairy tale that you are very familiar with and tell it from two points of view and two different characters. (For example, the "Beauty and the Beast" versions were told as omniscient and first-person from the Beast.)

Example of “Beauty and the Beast” from the omniscient point of view:
“Long ago there lived a merchant with three lovely daughters…”

Example of “Beauty and the Beast” from the first-person point of view:
“I was glad when I turned into a beast…”
Once you have chosen your fairy tale, use the rubric below to guide your narrative writing. Lined paper has been provided on the following pages for you to write your fairy tales.
