About Signum

We formed this company from one idea, which was to provide the world with one essential necessity: communication. Signum is a Latin word that means signal when translated to English. As the technology continues to evolve and consumers demand higher data capacity more than ever, we feel that providing our customers with a broader spectrum of signal power is key to our company's success.

Our company's goal is to provide each and every customer with reliable and high quality communication products that may be utilized in remote areas where there are no cell signals available. The application of our products is limitless, from an emergency situation to recreational activities. Signum has committed to provide 100% satisfaction guarantee to our customers.
