Dear Parents or Guardians of _____,

As you know, your child is participating in the ST Math Pre-K program at school. In ST Math, students play visual math games designed to teach math concepts. Children can play these math games on any Internet connected computer or tablet. It is our recommendation you provide only fifteen minutes of software exposure at a time.

Because this program tracks progress while teaching math skills, it is important that only the participating child plays the games.

It is normal for children to get temporarily "stuck" on some questions, and the child should watch the visual feedback on the screen to understand why an answer is right or wrong. This will allow him or her to learn to successfully solve the problems.

Children should not be given the 'right' answer just to pass a difficult level. The classroom teacher can monitor whether he or she is stuck for too long.
